From 07th to 28th January 2024

1- International Law and Human Rights

This course teaches students about international law from the European perspective, and how human rights intersect with both national and international law. Students not just have an intensive immersive experience, but also will get to explore Central Europe.

When: 7-28 January 2024

Cost: €2600

6-8* ECTS

*8 ECTS is possible with extra assignments if required by home university

This course has limited capacity remaining, interested students should apply soon.

2- International Relations and Threats to Global Security

The course focuses on the national, European, and NATO level response to security issues.

Throughout the three weeks, students will cover a range of security topics such as cyber, religious radicalism, military, energy, and migration through classes and site visits to organizations in the field.

The course, in its 13th year, is targeted for BA and MA students interested in understanding of some of the fundamental international security issues and their implications for Europe and the world.

When: 7-28 January 2024

Cost: €2600

6-8* ECTS
